NORTHEAST COLLEGES & UNIVERSITIES SECURITY ASSOCIATION
AMERICA'S OLDEST CAMPUS LAW ENFORCEMENT ORGANIZATION

March 2017

Dear Colleagues;

As we all know, the political landscape has significantly changed in Washington, DC. Some might even suggest the landscape is unrecognizable. That said, it is clear that the new administration and new congress have plans on moving in a significantly different direction and we should expect some potential changes in the area of Federal compliance. Many experts seem to suggest that Title IX could be dramatically different in the very near future with potentially less regulatory oversight. Some think that many OCR guidelines could be set aside or even rolled back. Others suggest that the Clery Act compliance program could be additionally impacted through the budget appropriations process, through amendments, additional standalone bills, etc. There are several pieces of proposed and pending legislation that all could impact the Clery Act and compliance in a variety of ways. NECUSA's partnership with D. Stafford & Associates and the National Association of Clery Compliance Officers and Professionals (NACCOP) affords our membership the unique opportunity to get quality training at a discounted rate and to interact with professionals from these associations during our annual NECUSA conference. This conference will be no different. Not only will we have professionals from the D. Stafford & Associates Team, we have invited Jim More from the Department of ED's Clery Act Compliance Team. Given the potential changes on the horizon, the NECUSA conference is certainly timely and having these experts in attendance to provide us with some insight into the potential future is a great opportunity many of us can't afford to pass up. If you aren't registered for the conference, I would strongly suggest visiting the NECUSA website and joining us in Princeton this June. If you have let your membership lapse, get online and join now – you are missing out on quality, affordable, training and programming!

See you all soon!!
